AMUSEMENTS

"THE SQUAW MAN"

Among the small band of character actors who stand at the head of their profession in this country, there is none who occupies a more honorable position than Charles Foster who portrays the character of Tabywana, Peace Chief of the Utes, in the great William Faversham success "The Squaw Man" written by Edwin Milton Royle, which comes to Holland's Opera House on Tuesday night, January 24.

As a master of the art of make-up, Foster has few equals and no superiors on our stage. Frequently, during performances of "The Squaw Man," auditors have been heard to offer wagers that he is a full-blooded Indian, so realistically true and startlingly life-like is his representation of the old Ute Chief. Mr. Foster, who has made a specialty of portraying Indian parts, the past ten years, is about six feet in height, and rather stockily built. He has the long straight-featured, plastic face that is so often met with among well known actors; a deep bass voice of a timbre naturally suited to the guttural Ute language of Tabywana, though his nose serves merely as the groundwork for the big Chief's broad, hooked organ of smell. So thoroughly has Foster studied his subject that during his summer months several years ago, he lived among the Utes at their Reservation in Colorado and mastered their native tongue. Further than this he is religiously painstaking as witness the fact that it takes him one hour and fifty minutes before each performance to don his paints and putty for the make-up for his picturesque and perfect characterization of the old, battle-scarred Indian in "The Squaw Man."

MONSTROSITY

From Todd County on Exhibition Here.

Among a lot of poultry from Elkton, sold to the Peter Fox Sons Co., and shipped here this week, is a monstrosity in the shape of a three-legged rooster. The rooster had four legs, but one of them froze and dropped off. The bird's third limb grew out from the left hip and is about five inches in length, with perfect toes. The unnatural production is quite a curiosity and is attracting much attention. The rooster is of ordinary stock, but is a beautiful specimen.

Wilson on Warts.

Woodrow Wilson, though a college president, can speak in the language of the people. Hear this, referring to the fight on the old Jersey boss: "It is not a difficult or capital operation to cut off a wart. You don't have to administer an anesthetic. It can be done while you wait." Then the audience roared.—Herald.

Dread Of An Operation.

N. Manchester, Ind.—Mrs. Eva Bashore, of this place, says, "I suffered female misery of every description. Two doctors attended me, and advised an operation. I lost weight until I weighed only ninety pounds. I dreaded an operation, and instead, began to take Cardui. In a short time, I gained 25 pounds, and feel as well as I ever did. Cardui, I am sure, saved my life." Cardui is today used in thousands of homes, where it relieves pain and brings back strength and ambition. It is a woman's medicine, for women's ailments, and you are urged to try it for your troubles. Ask your druggist. He will tell you about Cardui.

Tale Of Two Cities.

Hopkinsville, Ky., and Clarksville, Tenn., are close enough for the citizens of one to shake hands with the citizens of the other after but a brief ride on the cars. Both are pioneer cities established when the Kentucky Purchase was open for settlement.

Clarksville was for many years the head of navigation on the Cumberland River, while Hopkinsville was the relay station for the wagon trains going from the Ohio River to Nashville and points South.

Clarksville had the incidental advantage of being on a navigable stream.

Hopkinsville has two railroads, Clarksville has the same two.

Both are in the same tobacco territory, and the soil surrounding both is alike. The citizenship is bound to be of the same stripe, as everybody in Clarksville is kin to everybody in Hopkinsville.

But Clarksville, which had 2,151 more inhabitants in 1900 than Hopkinsville, now has 871 less.

There is bound to be a reason for this. It may be because of the fact that Clarksville is in Tennessee, while Hopkinsville is in Kentucky. But there's not that much difference in states. It may be that Hopkinsville just naturally out-talked its Tennessee neighbor and started migration in that direction.

However it may be, sitting at a convenient distance, where rocks thrown from one at another will not touch us, we give it as our opinion that the reason can be seen in the fact that the Hopkinsville administration has pursued a sane and safe policy on public matters, and has not permitted fanaticism to get the ascendancy. If ourded actions are right, they ought to form a lesson for Clarksville, and perhaps for other cities.—Bowling Green Messenger.

Must Wear Kid Gloves.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 18.—Chief of Police Henry Singery has issued an edict to the policemen that hereafter they must wear kid gloves, and within a week Beau Brummels will be plentiful in the department. The new caps ordered will be here next week. The chief also has warned the patrolmen against muddy boots, missing buttons and untidy uniforms. He will hold an inspection weekly.

Mrs. Cook Tells Truth

Dexter, Ky.—In a signed statement, Mrs. Cook tells the truth about how Cardui brought back her health and strength. She says, "I could not get any relief, until I tried Cardui, the woman's tonic. I suffered more or less for 10 years, and was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my house work. Now I am in better health than ever before, am regular as clock work, do not suffer at all, and gain strength every day." Thousands of women have been helped back to health by Cardui. Try it.

Nearly a Billion Spent.

Over eight million dollars were spent during the last ten years in support of miners' strikes, according to the report of President Lewis, given to the convention of the United Mine Workers of America at Columbus.

Two Dead Aeronauts.

Berlin, Jan. 18.—The German balloon, Hildebrandt, which had been missing since its ascent at Schmargendorf on December 29, was found in a lake in Pomerania province, Prussia. The bodies of both aeronauts were in the gondola.

Thirty Sentenced to Death.

Twenty-nine men and one woman, charged with plotting to kill the Crown Prince of Japan, were publicly sentenced to death at Tokio.
